I acknowledge the ceremonies I plan to participate in as part of my religious practice, in exercise of my freedom of religion and under protections of the First Amendment of the United States laws and Constitution.

As part of these religious ceremonies, I will drink the Divine Yagé sacrament, which is a natural extract of plants native to the Amazon Basin in South America. This Divine Sacrament will be consecrated and served in religious and spiritual practice guided in ceremony.

I understand and acknowledge that no guarantee, claim or promise regarding the curing of any illness, the nature of any spiritual experience, and/or that I will receive any benefit from participating in the ceremony.

I understand that the Ceremonies in which I voluntarily choose to participate may be physically, mentally, emotionally, and/or spiritually demanding. I understand that I may experience dizziness, nausea or other physical upsets including vomiting and diarrhea. I accept full responsibility for anything that may occur including emotional disturbance, mental disorientation and any and all possible manifestations of physical, emotional and/or mental changes. I acknowledge that the risks and potential benefits of my participation have been explained to me and I freely choose to enter this process accepting full responsibility for whatever may occur, anticipated or unanticipated.

I hereby knowingly and voluntarily assume the full risks of any physical or other injury, damage or losses, either to myself or caused to others by me during any of the Ceremonies. I am freely making monetary donations to help cover part of the expenses necessary to support the continuity of these Spiritual and Religious traditions for me and for future generations.

I understand I may be physically or mentally exhausted and/or disoriented after the Ceremonies, and I acknowledge that it is my responsibility to arrange alternate transportation, if needed.

I understand that although my participation in the Ceremonies is purely voluntary, I commit to follow all the instructions given during the Ceremony. I commit to stay in the Ceremonial space until the end of the Religious service, and under no circumstances will I leave the premises, either on foot or by any vehicle before I am cleared by the ceremonial guides to do so.

By signing this Waiver and Release of Liability Agreement I understand, acknowledge, and agree to the importance of the privacy of the Ceremony, its participants, and the observations made of others during the Ceremony, and agree not to share any of this information and/or observations with anyone.

Any emotional or other process that I happen to observe in others during the Ceremony will be kept strictly confidential.
